This book is in the Ukrainian language. Novel Stained Glass features modern day characters of Kyiv, Ukraine. But the events in the novel, historically and geographically, stretch between the start of World War II to this day, and from France in the West to the Gulag camps in Kazakhstan.

The main heroine of the novel is a young woman Pauline, a translator of French, which is due to problems in her personal life cannot focus on the translation of the novel by Francoise Sagan, already dead, but life is very famous, flamboyant French writer. To encourage herself to work, Pauline begins to study Sagan's life and becomes inspired to finish her work.

The novel is not about Sagan, but to some extent also about her.

There is one other plot line, quite unexpectedly developed into a little detective, a little philosophical, poignant and honest story which the author did not want to fully reveal so as not to deprive the reader of their own discovery. Vitragi, Mila Ivancova.
